

Abstract Of The Disclosure

A method of producing structured wafers guarantees that the edge of the wafer will be protected from attack by an aggressive etchant medium without applying a photoresist to the edge and without using additional mechanical measures. In 5 a type of negative process, a passivation layer is applied to the areas that are not to be structured, including the edge area of the wafer.

54202